$1,999,000

"Labyrinth House" is a sanctuary, sited on gently sloping land in a gardener's paradise, with an ever-changing view of nature. The house, a split-level West Coast Modern gem designed by award-winning architect Pamela Charlesworth, is built for entertaining, with generous spaces, private corners, and abundant natural light. Wood features prominently, with cedar tongue & groove ceilings, custom cabinetry, and many hand-crafted elements. On the main floor, a cozy den with French doors provides a quiet space for fireside reading, while the great room boasts acoustic qualities that are perfect for house concerts. Two bedrooms have their own outside access, and the lower floor could suit tenants or B&B accommodation. Above the garage is a heated loft, and there is ample storage on all levels. Outside you'll find a Japanese-inspired zen garden, a small greenhouse and raised beds, mature flowering shrubs and fruit trees, and a rustic labyrinth for walking meditation.
