Set your course for Allendale, because this raised bungalow is ready for immediate departure. On a tree-lined avenue once known as Quincy Street (now 66 Ave) between Strathcona and King Streets, this is the kind of setting any Starfleet would approve of. In a quiet, established, neighbourhood within close range of the University of Alberta where the next generation of officers, engineers, and commanders diligently train. Step inside to find a beautifully updated kitchen that could command any gathering, with granite countertops and rich hardwood floors. The 5 bedrooms will comfortably house your entire crew, guests, and office. It's a great setup for writing your daily captain's logs. The yard expands your living space at warp speed with a large deck and fenced yard, ideal for enjoying your own corner of the quadrant. A single garage completes the mission, while being close to transit and campus. Chart a course for comfort, space, and character in this home where you can truly live long and prosper. (id:6769)
