A Bonnie Wee Bode in Highlands Fair. O come ye near, and cast yer eye, Upon this hoose sae modestly--In Highlands fair, near river's bend, Where trees in gentle breezes wend, This humble home ye may commend--It's peace ye'll surely find. A quiet lane, a noble place, Wi' downtown close, yet nature's grace--This wee abode will give ye space, And dreams yet tae be seen. Two beds above, one down below, Wi' sunlight warm and gentle glow; In twenty-seventeen, ye know, 'Twas fitted up wi' care. The windows changed, the codes made right, The kitchen opened tae the light, The bath reborn, the roof made tight--All ready for yer lair. The yard is huge, a spacious plot, For garden grand or builder's lot; Whether ye dream, or stick tae what A wealth o' paths lies at yer feet, For those who walk the budget dream, And peace shall always here be seen.
