

Rural Strathcona County Alberta

$399,900

A Rare Historic Landmark Opportunity Step back in time and discover the charm and character of the historic Partridge Hill Building, located in the peaceful countryside near Josephburg, Alberta. Originally completed in 1903, this iconic rural structure stands as a testament to Alberta's pioneering heritage and has served generations of local families for well over a century. Built through community fundraising, volunteer labour, and the dedication of early settlers, the church remains an important landmark in Strathcona County today. Nestled among mature trees and open prairie landscapes, this this 4.7acre unique property offers endless possibilities. Whether envisioned as a place of worship, wedding venue, community gathering space, heritage attraction, private retreat, or a one-of-a-kind restoration project, the church provides an atmosphere rich with history, character, and small-town Alberta charm. Featuring classic architecture, original craftsmanship, and a tranquil rural setting. (id:6769)
