A crooked shell with sagging grace, The house still stands, but knows its place. A dirt-floor basement, walls that moan, A structure that's best left alone. On a quiet street with little sound, It's where true value can be found. The house may groan, but don't despair-- That garage alone is worth the care. Step outside and you will see, A garage that stands in victory. Two cars wide, both warm and bright, Insulated, sealed up tight. Heated walls for winter's chill, A perfect shop or hobby thrill. On a quiet street where silence stays, This rare garage steals all the praise. Set in Alberta Ave's strong heart, Where local shops and murals start. A thriving scene, both proud and true, With artists, cafes, something new. (id:6769)
